

WAIS Inc UNIX Server

- 1MB-10GB collections
- Supports 1000s of users
- Easy to install and run
- Boolean, natural Language, Relevance Feedback
- Security and Billing
- Text, images, databases, newsfeeds

WAISStation: Active Database Sources, Saved Questions

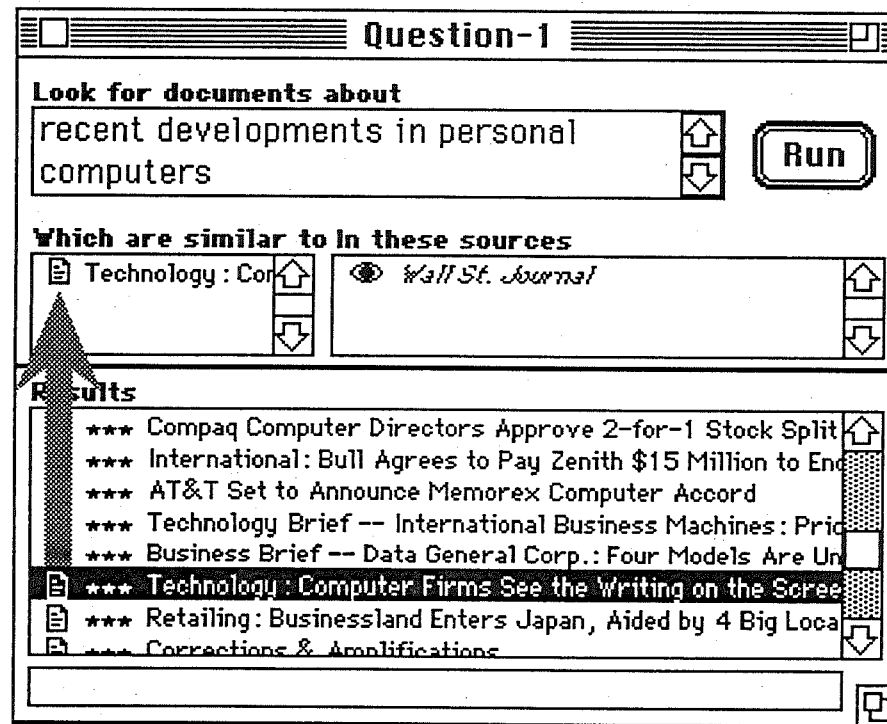

Sources
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> CM applications
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Encyclopedia
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> King James Bible
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Macintosh Hard Disk
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> TMC Business email
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> TMC Library Catalog
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Wall St. Journal
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> World Factbook

Questions
? CM Apps Question
? Library question
? Encyclopedia Q
? Patent Q
? TMC Bus. Email Q
? TMC Fun Q
? Montvale Q
? World Factbook Q
? poetry q
? Bible Q

Select Data Source

Relevance feedback: “Find me more like this one”

Relevance Feedback of Paragraph

Technology: Computer Firms See the Writing

Computer makers are scrambling to cash in on people who find the pen mightier than the keyboard.

International Business Machines Corp., Apple Computer Inc. and other big computer makers are staking out positions in the nascent market for "note-pad computers," small machines that let users enter data by writing rather than tapping keys. The note pads typically recognize numbers and letters printed on a screen with a special pen and convert them into computer data.

Question-1

Look for documents about

The recent developments in personal but computers

Run

Which are similar to in these sources

Technology: Cor Wall St. Journal

Results

-  Compaq Computer Directors Approve 2-for-1 Stock Split
-  International: Bull Agrees to Pay Zenith $15 Million to End
-  AT&T Set to Announce Memorex Computer Accord
-  Technology Brief -- International Business Machines: Price
-  Business Brief -- Data General Corp.: Four Models Are Un
-  Technology: Computer Firms See the Writing on the Scree
-  Retailing: Businessland Enters Japan, Aided by 4 Big Loca
-  Corrections & Amplifications